Community Activists

Community activists help to change their communities.

Have you ever noticed something that you'd like to change? Well, you can!

Some activists work to protect the environment. In one neighborhood, people noticed that trash was polluting their streets, so they became community activists who banded together to pick up the trash and taught people not to litter.

Other activists work to protect the people in their community. When people in one community noticed that their children didn't have a safe place to play, they wrote letters to the city council asking for a playground to be built.

What would you like to change about your neighborhood?
